Pleasanton eyes plans for quarry

PLEASANTON — City staff, spurred by the criticism of Mayor Pro Tem Bill Herlihy, has prepared a letter calling for a more complete study of a reclamation plan for a proposed quarry south of Stanley Boulevard.

The draft letter to Bill Fraley, Alameda County planning director, complains that the county's environmental impact report on the reclamation plan fails to consider truck traffic through Pleasanton. It also says that the reclamation proposal by Lone Star Industries, Inc. and California Rock and Gravel Co. does not suggest any specific use for the reclaimed land, which would be located between Pleasanton and Livermore.

Herlihy criticized the report at a council meeting last month because he said it indicated the gravel firms could "buy off" Pleasanton through the taxes they pay.

The letter, prepared by planning Director Bob Harris, does not mention Herlihy's criticism of a sentence in the report which says:

"Financial support received through sales tax and property tax from the operations provides net benefits to community facilities and services, without corresponding costs."

The letter will be reviewed by councilmen Monday night before a final copy is sent to Fraley.

The letter says that gravel trucks, which are "noisy, dirty and heavy," travel through Pleasanton on Stanley Boulevard, First Street and Sunol Boulevard at the rate of about 2,000 trucks per day.

It said they make "the area adjacent to this route unacceptable for residential use" and each loaded truck does as much damage to streets as 50,000 cars.

The two gravel companies obtained a permit to excavate the area in 1969 but were not allowed to go ahead with the project until a reclamation plan could be approved by county supervisors.

City sets litigation meeting

LIVERMORE — The city council will meet in an executive session Monday night at 7 p.m. to discuss the Associated Home Builders of Northern California (ABH) $1 million-plus suit against the city, now in U.S. District Court.

The federal suit, filed against both the City of Livermore and the Livermore Unified School District, challenges the constitutionality of ordinances and policies which limit the city's growth.

In April, Judge R.F. Peckham dismissed ABH from the suit — leaving the National Housing Partnership (NHP) as the sole plaintiff — and ruled the court would not consider the developers' denial of right to travel arguments pending the outcome of the Petaluma decision.

Since April, ABH filed a second amended complaint to remain in the suit and the city and school district of Livermore filed a motion for summary judgment or dismissal of that second amended complaint.

A hearing on the city's motion was set for Sept. 15 but at the request of ABH that date has been put back to Nov. 17.

The Petaluma case (which also involved ABH) was decided last month and the Ninth Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals ruled in favor of the city, essentially ruling out the right to travel issue.

The Petaluma decision, however, is expected to be appealed.

Pleasanton parade

son with a traditional parade and rally. Soccer play picked up later in the day and continues on through a busy fall season. (Times photo by Michael Bailey)

New CC County ambulance pact restores service to San Ramon

SAN RAMON — Ambulance service to area this was restored after Contra Costa County Supervisors unanimously voted to accept a new contract with Tri-Cities Ambulance, the president of the San Ramon Homeowners' Association (SRHA) announced Thursday.

The emergency aide service was stopped suddenly on June 12 when Tri-Cities cancelled its contract with the county. The company complained it wasn't being paid for taking emergency patients unable to pay ambulance fees to hospitals other than the county hospital in Martinez, 30 miles away.

The county claimed the original contract, which provided for payment of indigents requiring ambulatory service only when taken to the county hospital, was standard in format throughout the state.

Under state law, however, an ambulance driver is required to take emergency patients to the nearest hospital with emergency service, which would either be Valley Memorial in Livermore, John Muir in Walnut Creek, or Kaiser, also in Walnut Creek.

The SRHA had protested the curtailment of ambulance service to the area, and intensified its attack after an accident victim died in San Ramon during the lapse of service, although officials said the fatality was not due to a slow response of emergency services. Pomeroy Ambulance Co. of Walnut Creek provided service after the cut-off.

Earl Riggs, president of Fremont Ambulance Co., said he was instructed to cancel the contract with Contra Costa County by Valley Memorial Hospital Administrator Tom Andrews, who handles ambulance service contract matters for the valley.

Negotiations to change the contract to its present form had been going on for the last year, Riggs said, "but the wheels of government turn slowly."

Riggs said he and Andrews went to Martinez and told county officials Livermore and Pleasanton shouldn't have to pay for service in San Ramon that the county should be required to pay.

"We told them (county officials) about this problem before but they did nothing — so we finally had to cancel the contract," he said. "Only then did they take action."

The two-year contract was passed by the supervisors on August 25 and takes effect immediately.

The contract provides for reimbursement by the county to the ambulance company for taking indigent patients to any hospital nearest the injured, regardless of whether it is a county hospital.

The two-year pact also provides for the installation of radios receiving the county emergency dispatch band in two other ambulances, to make a total of three emergency vehicles available to the area. Currently, only one ambulance serves the unincorporated areas of San Ramon and Dublin.

The price for ambulance service by Tri-Cities will not increase under the new contract, Riggs said.

Upset by occurrences preceding and during the breakdown of regular ambulance services, the SRHA drafted a letter recommending changes in emergency medical care service procedures at Thursday's meeting.

Responding to an Emergency Medical Care Booklet distributed by the county, SRHA Director Dick Allen read a letter urging changes to better inform the public of emergency care status in the area.

Allen listed a "lack of citizen awareness of first-contact services and of an existing breakdown of ambulance service" as major flaws in the emergency services system. The letter also mentioned emergency vehicles, such as nearby fire department equipment closer to the injured man, could have been utilized until an ambulance arrived.

The letter suggests the news media be used to make people aware of emergency service breakdowns, such as the lapse of the ambulance contract, since many people didn't know the service had been ceased.

Direct contact with local community clubs and civic groups should be made to inform them of such crises, and they in turn could help communicate alternative action to people in their community, the letter suggested.

If it is not already a common practice, dispatchers should be aware of the location of other emergency vehicles in the immediate area that could be employed if needed, the draft concluded.

"A citizen could care less of contractual obligations and contingency plans — he just wants help when he calls," Allen said.

In other action, President Susanna Schlendorf said the county planning commission approved the Sunrise Country Club housing development at its last meeting. The development consists of 1,028 lots of garden homes and single-family dwellings in the $60,000 to $80,000 range, Schlendorf said.

Mori hears complaints

Parents seek state action for busing

Parents who oppose cutbacks in school bus systems that would require students to walk two miles and more to classes in Pleasanton and Dublin have carried their fight to the state legislature.

In a Saturday morning session with Assemblyman Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton), delegations from the Vintage Hills area on Pleasanton's east side, and the Silvergate section in westernmost Dublin presented to Mori a proposed draft for amendments to the California Education Code.

Key elements of that legislative amendment are — "The governing board of any school district shall provide for transportation by school bus" within the following guidelines:

Kindergarten pupils residing outside a half-mile radius of their assigned schools;

Elementary pupils residing outside a three-quarter mile radius of their schools and outside a one-mile radius for intermediate grades;

For high school students the walking limit would be one and one-half miles before bus transport would have to be provided.

In addition, where actual walking distances exceed those limits because of indirect access from home to school bus transport would have to be provided.

In addition, where actual walking distances exceed those limits — because of indirect access from home to school — bus transport would have to be provided.

The cutbacks instituted by the Pleasanton Elementary and Amador High School District boards of trustees would have required kindergarten students living within one mile of school to walk, grades four to eight to walk one and one-quarter miles, and high schoolers to walk as much as two and one-quarter miles.

The slashes in student transport were the school trustees response to "serious shortages" in funds for school operations, largely because of the state's failure to act on new funding for public school systems. However there was, at week's end, indications that some additional state money was forthcoming, and this has already resulted in local board action to restore some of the bus routes previously cut.

'NO ADVANCE NOTICE'

As much as they oppose the longer walk imposed on their school tots, parents taking part in the protest "resent the high-handed manner" they say was used by the school administrative force in imposing those cutbacks. They had no advance notice of the scheduled reductions, they claim, and learned only of the detail of those cutbacks when bus schedules (carried by The Times the day before classes started as a public service) failed to include a stop in their neighborhood.

The legislative amendments given to Mori would also require "notice mailed to the residence of each affected family" before any school board could reduce in the current school year the bus service that had been provided in the prior term.

The next two rounds in this ongoing battle are expected Thursday of this week when the Silvergate Homeowner's Association convenes an "emergency meeting to discuss ways to reverse these actions by Dr. Bruce Newlin (district superintendent) and his bus subordinates." That public meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. at Nielson School on Amarillo Road in Dublin. A Sept. 16 scheduled meeting of the Amador High School District board of trustees will also take up the entire matter of bus transport, board chairman Jack Delaney promises. However both he and Newlin have declined to call any special meeting of the board prior to that date.

Assemblyman Floyd Mori (left) accepts the proposed legislative amendments brought to him in a Saturday morning session with Pleasanton and Dublin parents who are seeking to reverse school board cutbacks in transportation for elementary and high school students. Pictured with Mori are Brenda and George Nicholson of Dublin, leaders of the protest movement.

Two bus stops reinstated

Students going to and from Alisal and Vintage Hills schools will have two bus stops reinstated as of Monday morning, but Silvergate residents may have a longer wait before school bus service is again scheduled.

The stops reinstated, following an emergency meeting of Pleasanton Elementary School District administrators Thursday, are those at Black and Harvest, for students returning home from Alisal School, and at Sylvaner and Chardonnay, for afternoon kindergarten students going between Vintage Hills School and that area.

A committee of Silvergate residents, as well as several from Vintage Hills, met with Assemblyman Floyd Mori in his Pleasanton offices Saturday to discuss the eliminated bus stops and offer draft legislation on maximum distances for children walking to school.

Three home-bound runs have been added for Alisal students, leaving the school at 11:15 a.m., 1:40 and 2:45. After the stop at Harvest and Black, the buses will continue on to the Del Prado area.

Ananos said that parents in the Vintage Hills area who desire transportation for their children will have the option of transferring them to the afternoon kindergarten section. He added that parents will be notified of the option and notes sent home with the children.

George and Brenda Nicholson of Dublin's Silvergate area spearheaded Saturday's gathering in Mori's office. The couple helped organize distribution of 400 leaflets last Wednesday after confronting Superintendent Bruce Newlin at district offices.

Nicholson continued to hammer at Newlin's alleged unfamiliarity with the plight of high school students in Silvergate.

He says students who must walk now can only get to classes at Dublin by traveling a long distance parallel to Highway 680, a route that he claims is unsafe.

Nicholson also referred to a conversation with Mike Ananos, district director of transportation, in which the latter was reportedly said two buses in the district's fleet were not used Thursday. He also claims that buses serving the continuation high school on Dublin Boulevard are only sparsely filled.

Airport unit meets on inbound cargoes

LIVERMORE — The airport advisory committee once again will consider the request of Mission Airlines to unload hazardous materials at the Livermore Municipal Airport when members meet at noon Monday in the Tailwinds Restaurant at the Las Positas Golf Course.

Other matters scheduled for consideration include a public relations post card for the airport; aircraft symbol on transient parking; an update on the airport master plan and land use study; stripping of the runways; electronic landing aids, and the proposed establishment of a weather station at the airport.

Most of the agenda items are routine business matters.

Alameda planners eye ridge

Alameda County Bureau

Alameda County Planning Commissioners will hear a request for evaluation of a preliminary land use and development plan for 460 acres on Pleasanton Ridge near Sunol at their Monday afternoon meeting.

Carl Nipper originally proposed 600 mixed, cluster and detached single-family residential units for the hill top parcel, but has amended his petition to 300 units on the Rancho de la Cresta.

In its 1:30 p.m. meeting in the county's public works building, 399 Elmhurst St., Hayward, commissioners also will hear a petition to reclassify from single family residences to the C-1, retail business district, a four acre lot to the rear of 7212 San Ramon Road north of the Dublin Boulevard intersection.

Current zoning requires 7,000 square feet minimum building sites for single family dwellings in the area.

The Evangelical Free Church of Pleasanton is asking the commission to reclassify from an agricultural district to a single family residence (40,000 square feet minimum site area) a five acre lot on Martin Avenue near the intersection with Trenery Drive in Pleasanton.

William Webb has petitioned for a similar reclassification on two and one-half acres of a 29 acre site on Country Lane near Foothill Road.

The area is now partially zoned for 40,000 square feet single family residences.

Commissioners also will hear an appeal for modification of a building sign in the Village Square Shopping Center at Village Parkway and Amador Valley Boulevard in Dublin.

The request for change in the Dublin Regional Center Design Policy has been made by Lana C. Craig of "Bedtime."

The quarry permit for removal and process of approximately 500,000 cubic yards of material from the estate of Peter Dagnino by the DePaoli Equipment Company comes up for its five year review at Monday's meeting.

A 10-year permit was issued for work on a site at the north end of Dagnino Road, one and one-half miles north of Livermore.

Del Oro 4-H sets meeting

The Del Oro 4-H Club will meet on Thursday, Sept. 25 at Joe Mitchell School at 7 p.m. Installation of officers and orientation of new members will take place.

Valley obituaries

Clarence Stanford

Private funeral services were held Friday for Clarence W. Stanford, a native of Oakland and 23 year resident of Livermore, who died Thursday in a local hospital. He was 58.

He had been employed for 22 years as a maintenance machinist for the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, and is survived by his wife, Madge, and daughter Mrs. Patricia Berry, both of Livermore and a son, Dahl Stanford of Pleasanton.

He also leaves two sisters, Gertrude Barnes, Santa Cruz, and Edith Peterson of Fresno, and seven grandchildren. His ashes were interred at the Chapel of the Chimes, Hayward, following Friday's services at the Callaghan Mortuary.

Those who wish may make contributions in his memory may to the Alameda County Heart Association or the Valley Memorial Hospital Memorial Fund.

Nell Orme

Nell P. Orme, a native of Kansas and 25 year resident of Livermore, died in a local convalescent hospital Friday. She was 88.

She was the wife of the late Alex R. Orme, and is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Helen Solomon of Hemet, Calif.

Funeral services were held Saturday in the chapel of Callaghan Mortuary, Livermore, followed by private inurnment.

The cremated remains will be placed in the family niche at Forest Lawn Cemetery, Glendale, Calif.

Environmental decision

Court rules against Sierra Club in big Blackhawk plan litigation

By PAT KEEBLE
Leshner News Bureau

MARTINEZ — The Board of Supervisors acted properly in approving the huge Blackhawk development, a court opinion states in ruling against the Sierra Club.

The decision Friday by Contra Costa Superior Court Judge Norman Gregg was the second big environment versus development suit the club has lost in recent weeks, the first being against the Apperson Ridge guest ranch in Alameda County.

The club had charged in the suit brought a year ago against the county and Blackhawk Corp. that the 4,200-home development in the Mt. Diablo foothills was inconsistent with the county general plan, that the environmental impact report EIR was inadequate, that there were irregularities in the proceedings, and related charges.

"A general plan is a guide, not a strait-jacket," Judge

Gregg wrote in his lengthy memorandum of decision.

He added that the board's findings that the development was consistent with the general plan "are amply supported."

The decision notes the Sierra Club's principal attacks "are on the growth-inducing factors of the project and its effect on the physical environment."

It also notes that "the plan, among other things, provides on approval 2,700 acres of Blackhawk land to the Mt. Diablo State Park and some five acres for a paleontological project to the University of California."

"It provides general dedications of land for parks, schools and community services and amenities," it adds. Judge Gregg said the board considered the obvious environmental impact of the project, "weighed all the objections against the advantages ... and found that notwithstanding its environmental impact it should be approved."

In response to the complaints about the EIR, Judge Gregg said it is "abundantly clear" the report and a "Further Response" fully cover the project's impact on the environment.

He said court decisions indicated an EIR "need not be exhaustive" but that the Blackhawk EIR is exhaustive in its coverage of the environmental impact.

The county general plan, he said, is a guide, and "growth being inevitable, the county has the right and duty to amend its zoning ordinances as new and changed conditions warrant."

Concerning the plaintiffs' charge that improper contacts were made with the supervisors, Judge Gregg noted, "I have no doubt all interested parties tried to influence the board's decision."

"But I find no one improperly did so," he stated. "Finding no prejudicial abuse of discretion, and the board having proceeded in the manner required by law, the court finds its actions must be approved," Judge Gregg said.

Whether or not the club will appeal the decision is unknown at this time. Club officials are considering an appeal in the Apperson Ridge case, where they made similar arguments against a large-scale guest ranch planned near the Sunol wilderness area.

Unless there is an appeal, the decision clears another hurdle for the Blackhawk developers.

The supervisors are to decide Wednesday whether to permit a referendum election against the development's annexing to utility service districts.

If the decision is that an election should not be held, opponents would have to go to court again over the issue of whether the annexations are a proper subject for a referendum.

Community development chief

Livermore may create new high level post

LIVERMORE — The city council will consider creating a new $25,000 position for a director of community development who also would oversee the planning, parks and trees and building inspection departments.

Under the new administrative structure that would be created, the director would be responsible to City Manager Bill Parness. Planning Director George Musso — who now reports directly to Parness — would assume the title of city planner and be responsible to the director.

The departments of building inspection and parks and trees under the present structure are included in the public works department.

The new director also would assume responsibility for beautification (now under no specific city division) and property management.

The creation of a department of community development has been a pet proposal of council members Helen Tirsell and Dale Turner for over a year. Limited funds, as brought to their attention by Parness, has kept the idea on the back burner.

However, the council indicated during budget study sessions this summer that it wanted to consider the new position once again. Parness prepared a report on the subject which will be reviewed and possibly approved by the council at its meeting Monday night.

A total of $34,000 will be necessary to fund the department, according to Parness' estimates: $2,100 a month for an annual director's salary of $25,200; $750 in fringe benefits, and $8,000 in support expenses (office, travel, clerical, general maintenance and operation).

As envisioned by the council and outlined by Parness, the primary function of the director would be to promote and develop industrial and commercial interests in Livermore.

He or she also would assume responsibility for the management of under city ownership as well as directing park site acquisitions and easement purchases.

"The details associated with this function include retention of appraisal services, contacts with property owners, negotiations of sale, consummation of such, and the accurate and current maintenance of a property inventory is a very substantial task which is now beyond the time availability of our city management," Parness stated in his report.

The city manager originally presented the idea of hiring a special acquisition agent during the budget study sessions. The council indicated its approval of the proposal at that time.

If the council approves the creation of the director of community development at its meeting, the city probably will begin recruitment for the position through professional journals. Parness also has prepared a special brochure for the position.

Mayor proclaims day for world literacy

LIVERMORE — Mayor Archer Futch has proclaimed Monday as "World Literacy Day in the Livermore Area" in accordance with a request by the United Nations that Sept. 8 be observed throughout the world as such an occasion.

The proclamation signed by the Livermore mayor notes that LIFE centers, members of the Lauback Literacy's National Affiliation for Literacy Advance, are engaged in training tutors to teach adults in Livermore on an "each one teach one" basis how to read and write.

LIFE centers are commemorating the life of Dr. Frank C. Lauback who between 1930 and 1970 "developed easy-to-read lessons in 103 countries and 312 different languages," the proclamation states.

"Illiteracy is a serious world problem, hampering at least 810 million people — one-third of the adult human race — in their attempts to gain an adequate standard of living and ... prevents citizens of our own city from full participation in our civic, social and economic life," the proclamation points out.

Murray ponders land sale

The Murray Elementary School District Board of Trustees will consider adoption of a resolution to sell a 15-acre plot of land at a special meeting Monday, Sept. 8 at 8 p.m. in the superintendent's office.

Trustees will consider the resolution to sell the Kolb site for $109,250. This will be the only non-routine action of the board at this special meeting.

The superintendent's office is located at Murray School District headquarters, 7416 Brighton Drive in Dublin.

Two SR youths set for Eagle honors Monday

David Eyster and Reed Hornberger, both 18 and of San Ramon Troop 201 will become Eagle Scouts, the highest award in scouting, during a Court of Honor on Monday, Sept. 8 at 8 p.m. at the California High amphitheater.

Walnut Creek Municipal Judge Betsy Rahn will award the Eagle Badges following ceremonies conducted by Troop 201 Senior Patrol Leader Dan'l Adams.

Both scouts are June graduates of San Ramon High and will go on to college this September.

Bewildered Viet children 44 who fled are in valley

There are 44 Vietnamese children, most of them speaking little English, making their bewildered way through Valley schools.

They all come from families being sponsored by local families, they all are recently arrived not only from Vietnam but Cambodia, and they all seem to be receiving a warm and concerned welcome from students and teachers as they gaze at strange new classrooms and books printed in letters unlike the characters they are used to.

Meanwhile, school officials are battling for some federal funds to pay for some special attention for these children, who are at present in regular classrooms of 30 or more children.

The Livermore Unified School District, least able to afford a special program for the foreigners, is of course hardest hit with 31 Vietnamese students in kindergarten through high school.

According to Livermore's pupil personnel chief, Dick Jenkins, another 27 Vietnamese adults will probably be attending night school to learn English, while seven preschoolers have been located as well.

At the other extreme, the Murray Elementary School District has identified no Vietnamese children so far. San Ramon reports four, three attending California High School and one in Neil Arlstrong Elementary.

Pleasanton's Gloria Jones, pupil personnel director, Friday located five elementary pupils, one enrolled in intermediate school and five in elementary school. "So far, no difficulties — except one case of culture shock," she reports.

The culture-shock victim will be going to school part-time and eased in a regular program later on.

There are so many differences between Vietnamese and American schools that more evidence of misunderstanding, tension and downright misery may manifest itself in a few weeks. Right now, the children seem to be "doing fine" everywhere and approximately up with Valley children of the same age in subjects that don't require English ability, such as math.

Officials in the district offices of the San Ramon, Pleasanton and Livermore school districts are all planning special workshops to help teachers understand and aid their new pupils.

"Right now" and "so far" are words that qualify every statement made about the children, who may soon be moved into different classes or put into special groups. Right now, Marylin and Fifth Street Elementary Schools in Livermore have the highest concentration of Vietnamese children.

Marylin's nine children have mostly been placed in classes in pairs, so they'll at least have each other when the going gets strange. Other teachers are coping by assigning each Vietnamese child to a special helper, permanently. It's called "insulating" and, according to one teacher who's trying it, both the stranger and the helper like the personal touch.

"English for the Foreign-Born," a Livermore Adult School regular course, is expected to be filled with Vietnamese students in addition to the usual complement of Spanish speaking students plus a sprinkling of others.

According to Jenkins, Livermore's much-needed and un-subsidized program will have to take into account the teaching of English as the primary need of Vietnamese children in every grade.

"But," he says, "there are also other needs — social, psychological, personal, educational.

"Luckily, the little ones pick up English fast."

Home values rise with costs

DUBLIN — The higher cost of a home today is not as high as might appear on the surface and in many cases the home represents a better dollar for dollar value than the house which carried a significantly lower price tag 10 years ago.

This is the view of Frank Straface, president of Valley Realty, one of California's leading realtors and residential real estate brokers.

Straface points out that dramatic changes and advances have occurred in building technology in recent years. New methods and materials have been introduced which cost less but give the owner more in long service, satisfaction and aesthetic qualities.

Prominent examples are the modular and pre-fabricated components increasingly used in new homes.

Other examples are metal siding that requires no painting, toermal window glass that saves on heating bills, new types of insulation that keep out winter cold and heat. In many cases household appliances have been simplified for lower cost but improved to give better and longer service.

Straface agrees that higher basic prices for homes have shut many prospective buyers out of the market. If a young couple simply doesn't have the money, the value of the product is beside the point. But for those who can come up with a down payment and the monthly installments, even though these may be stiff, the investment can be a good one, especially over a long term.

Equally important are the way homes are now located in a development.

Bicentennial tour of hertiage homes

Antique collection and vintage home marry

By LILLY AULT

Living in an older home is not new to the Hacker family.

Mrs. Hacker, an antique collector since she was 14 years old, loves and understands the beauty of the Early American way of life. Older homes are her choice since they help to complement her collection of antiques.

The Hacker home, located at 4547 Third Street, Pleasanton, will be open to the public during the "Heritage House Tour" on Oct. 5.

Built in 1890, the vintage home is set back off the street, screened with high shrubs and a large redwood tree in the front yard which has now been designated as a hertiage tree by the City of Pleasanton.

The house is built with redwood and square nails. The Arnold A. Abrotts, owners of the home, renovated and restored the structure, but retained as many of the original windows as possible.

Two front rooms were made into one large living room with a fireplace and bookshelves added. The dining room and kitchen were enlarged and a side porch was incorporated. The house was originally built without plumbing, so one large closet was made into a bathroom. Closets were also added. There are three bedrooms, a bath upstairs, one bedroom and bath downstairs. A plant collection in a screened porch at the back have made that area a solarium.

Old fruit trees planted in the yard by Mrs. Abrott still remain there along with a beautiful garden. Mrs. Abrott, formerly Miss Georgia, was raised in the house, still lives in Pleasanton and will be present during the house tour to answer questions.

Before moving to Pleasanton, and leasing their home from the Abrotts, the Hackers lived in Southern California where Mrs. Hacker was an interior decorator. This explains her ability to incorporate antiques in a decorating scheme.

Antiques, however, are not limited to her home. The collector owns an antique store dubbed "The Caboose" off Pleasanton's Main Street. Her children are also very interested in antiques and have rooms in their home furnished to a particular era.

In order for an item to qualify as an antique, it should be at least 100 years old according to Mrs.

The residence of the James Hacker family on Third Street in Pleasanton is among five hertiage homes to be open for observation through the Pleasanton Bicentennial Committee in October. The redwood tree at far left has been designated a hertiage tree by the City of Pleasanton. Lifestyle will feature a Bicentennial tour home each Sunday.

Hacker. Not all dated items, however, are considered "good" antiques.

For one who has grown up with antiques all her life and raised children among her valuables, she believes these items should be used in the home rather than merely gather dust.

James Hacker shares his wife's interest in antiques as well as her shop, but works as a salesman leaving the details of the shop in Mrs. Hacker's care.

Participants of the hertiage tour will have a double pleasure when touring the Hacker house — a chance to view an old home and to see antique pieces artfully incorporated into a flowing decorating theme.

Pleasanton Bicentennial Committee sets tour

In keeping with the spirit of '76 — to help renew the national spirit and appreciation of our country — the Pleasanton Bicentennial Committee will be offering many functions in honor of the Nation's 200th birthday. One of the most outstanding of these celebrations will be the "Heritage House Tour" scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 5 from noon to 5 p.m. The tour will consist of five of the "older" homes in Pleasanton. Open to adults only, limited reservations may be made by mailing a check of $5 per person or $2.50 for senior citizens, to Pleasanton Bicentennial Committee, P.O. Box 252, Pleasanton.

Part of a once - extensive collection of pewterware graces the Hacker mantelpiece along with an iron toy depicting a horse - drawn Civil War cannon, and 125 - year - old English military prints. The pine beams, paneling and cabinetry in the kitchen complement a 150 - year - old harvest table from a Connecticut farm. The tureen centerpiece is antique English ironstone.

Sierra Club weekend trip

The Livermore-Amador Regional Group of the Sierra Club is sponsoring a weekend trip to the famous Pygmy Forest Sept. 12-14 at Jughandle Creek Farm, five miles south of Fort Bragg.

The group will arrive at the farm Friday at 6 p.m. and stay through Sunday noon, hiking the Giant Staircase through present-day examples of 300,000 years of ecological development. The area has fostered full-grown trees which have been dwarfed to sapling size.

The trip is limited to 20 people, including children who must be at least five years old. Cost for the weekend is $7.50 per adult and $5.50 per child with Saturday night dinner provided.

For more information contact Ray Fontaine at 447-5912.

Boat safety

A class in boating safety begins at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday Sept. 9 at Franklin Savings and Loan Association, Main Street, Pleasanton.

The class is sponsored by Pleasanton Flotilla 96 of the twelfth district of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary. The instruction will continue Tuesday evenings.

Loma Alta group forging ahead

The Loma Alta Playground Action Committee and part-time fund-raising organization is alive and thriving in Pleasanton!

What began last September as a bid to get a play area for tiny tots has progressed through innumerable meetings with city staff members, committee meetings, working-up of plans and now to a flyer delivered to more than 600 residents around Fairlands School and Churchill Drive.

Jacquie Oliverius and Sue Twomey see it as a "dream" borne out of necessity. They estimate the area has at least 300 children under the age of 12, many of them pre-schoolers, who have no playground with apparatus suitable to their age levels.

The two, in a vanguard of some two dozen young mothers "and one man," are afraid the city will not be able to provide them with a tiny tot playground for some time to come. They are now prepared to take the lead, organize fund-raisers, and get the project underway during the winter and spring months.

Hell hath no fury like women who are put off!

The playground action committee, with personalized stationery and "LAPAC" logo held high, has charged forward through the municipal "forest" and charted a course they hope will result in a play-area in the green belt that now is home to the Loma Alta tennis courts.

The hope is for the playground to be in use by next summer.

Toward this goal, the committee is planning the "First-Ever Supermeadows LAPAC Flea Market" on Saturday, Oct. 18 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The location will be behind Fairlands School, 4151 W. Las Positas Blvd.

Persons interested in booth space should contact Mrs. Oliverius or Mrs. Twomey by Oct. 11. Phone numbers, respectively, are 462-2643 and 846-9280. Fee for renting booth space is $4 and should be made out to LAPAC and sent to 3445 Beecham Ct., Pleasanton 94566. Booths may sell any goods except those concerned with firearms, tobacco products, alcohol, and controversial materials. Home canned products or food may not be sold, as regulated by the Food and Drug Administration.

LAPAC will, however, sell hot dogs, soft drinks, cotton candy and sno-cones, and operate information and lost & found booths.

The ladies are both practical and "PR"-minded. The plot that is leading toward the play area finale is a contemporary one.

Moms-see-need-for-play-area, moms-petition-city-hall, city-says-theres-little-money-and-low-priority, moms-pickup-ball-and-run-with-it.

The "script" got its first reading last September when five women in the Pleasanton Meadows area, all with pre-schoolers, decided the tots needed a play area.

They went to the city to get a play area built and learned that one was in the plans, adjacent to the tennis courts.

Last Dec. 27, organizers received a letter from Donald Sooby, director of engineering services for the city, saying the proposed tot-lot plans were completed.

But homeowners were split over prospective uses for the playground.

They learned that the costs of putting in a fully-equipped play area would be at least $8,000... concrete alone was estimated to cost $4,000.

So they decided, along about January, to enlarge the committee and get a play area constructed that the majority of residents wanted.

With this in mind, Mrs. Oliverius and Mrs. Twomey and fellow committee members took to the hustings to see what other communities had in the way of parks.

They got some great ideas and lots of help from Wesley Sakamoto of the Hayward Area Recreation Department, plus a look at Kennedy Park near the Hayward Airport.

They hope to incorporate a tree house fort, for the 6-12 age group, swings and a climber slide with a 3-foot wide slide. They are united in holding out for new construction materials, which include poles that have been priced at $250 each.

The group is eyeing a late-October date for receiving plans from the city.

Now that plans are in the works, the committee is looking ahead to various fund-raisers such as the flea market. "We are hoping costs can be kept between $5,000 and $6,000," comments Mrs. Oliverius. "Most of the actual construction will be done by Pleasanton Meadows families and volunteers. However, the city has offered the use of some heavy equipment and supervisory personnel to aid in the work."

"Our goal is groundbreaking by February 1, 1976," the women exclaim, "so the playground will be ready for use next summer."

Don't bet against them not making it on schedule.

Dublin Trade Night

Dublin merchants will be toasted and treated Sept. 25 at the Chamber of Commerce's annual Trade night this year featuring comedian Ben Wrigley and songstress-comedienne Barbara Hanna. Bill's credentials include appearances with Audrey Hepburn in "My Fair Lady," while Barbara has appeared in clubs from coast to coast. Only 200 tickets will be sold for the Shannon Community Center evening's cocktail hour, barbecued steak dinner, entertainment and door prizes — at $7.50 per person. Tickets will NOT be sold at the door, according to chairman Jules Barni, and reservations should be made at the chamber offices, 7996 Amador Valley Blvd., 828 - 6200.

Senate Bill 220 didn't help Murray

The passage of Senate Bill 220 — which was designed to give desperately needed money to school district throughout the state — has precipitated another crisis in the Murray Elementary School District.

The Certificated Employees' Council (CEC), which represents the teachers, originally wanted the entire amount devoted to teacher salaries, benefits and instructional supplies, which would have brought the total teacher package to an 8½ per cent pay raise, not counting step and column increments, which average out to 4.5 per cent.

However after a district offer of a total 6 per cent raise — or 2 per cent higher than its earlier offer — the teachers came down to 6½ per cent total.

The CEC is polling the teachers on the district on three alternatives: 1) accept the district offer of 6 per cent; 2) stand firm with 6½ per cent or 3) ask for 8½ per cent. The CEC is recommending that the teachers do not accept the 6 per cent offer.

No strike is anticipated, regardless of the outcome of the polling.

Further information on any programs may be obtained by calling the "Y" at 462-2211.

District starts use survey

"Ever hear of the East Bay Regional Park District?" That's the first question Then:

"When was the last time you were in a regional park?" "Which facilities did you use?"

It's not a joke perpetrated by a bored teen-ager, but a telephone survey about to begin The East Bay Regional Park system, headquartered in Oakland, will be taking a survey of 1,600 families in its two-county area.

EBRPD planners want to know how taxpayers (who shell out about $20 a year to support the system) feel about their regional parks — which include Shadow Cliffs in Pleasanton, Sunol Regional Wilderness, and Del Valle in Livermore as well as two dozen others from Fremont to Richmond.

Some of the questions you'll be asked if your home was chosen for the survey:

— What did you do while in the parks?

— What mode of transportation did you use to get there?

— What do you like best and least about EBRPD parks?

— Would you be willing to pay higher taxes or fees to pay for improvements?

Pleasanton seniors to meet

The Pleasanton Senior Citizens will meet Monday, Sept. 8 for their business meeting at the Veteran's Building at noon. Assorted salads will be served by the refreshment committee.

The choral group meets every Thursday from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. at Kottinger Place.

Midway in county

Valley tax rate normal

Pleasanton and Livermore rank about midway down on a list of total tax rates in the cities of Alameda County.

The two cities are below the Berkeley high of $16.693 per $100 assessed valuation and well above San Leandro's low of $9.465.

A recent city tax increase of four cents puts Pleasanton's total tax burden at $13.138 for 1975-76.

Livermore is close behind with a total tax rate of $13.080 per $100 assessed valuation.

Area rainfall up 4 percent in '74

In the 12 months ending in August of this year rainfall throughout the East Bay exceeded the 25-year norm by four percent, although readings of up to 140 percent of the annual mean were recorded in Pleasanton.

The Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District has just released a station-by-station report on rainfall readings throughout the two East Bay counties. Those figures reflect a pattern of high moisture counts for the season just ended, ranging from 25.22 inches at the Pleasanton Corporation Yard, to 25.47 inches at the Kolb Ranch near Dublin, 26.24 inches at the Three Gates Ranch in Livermore, and 25.22 inches at Calaveras Reservoir east of Sunol.

In southern Contra Costa County the recordings included 27.53 inches at Danville, 18.10 at Dublin Fire Station No. 2, and a wet 33.01 inches at Orinda., which was actually 2.49 inches below that community's annual mean reading.

On the low side, parts of rural Livermore east of that city reported 1974-75 totals of less than 14 inches, while the reading near the City of Newark was just 11.07 inches, 86 percent of that area's annual mean.

Wettest spots in the East Bay are consistently the hills above Berkeley with several points reporting in excess of 30 inches, but for some strange reason many of those readings were below the 25-year norm.

Mutual aid pact

Valley fire units alerted

Valley fire departments were put on "Yellow Alert" Thursday night — an emergency stand-by status — following a rash of 12 fires in Berkeley.

Under the Alameda County mutual assistance pact, county-wide agencies, as well as the California Division of Forestry, could have been called to assist supervisory personnel manning fire companies in Berkeley.

Berkeley firemen had been on strike for nearly two weeks when the series of fires broke out between 9:30 p.m. and 1:10 a.m., Friday. The 11 included a garage fire on Grizzly Peak Drive at the crest of the Berkeley hills and 11 trash and grass fires, "all apparently set," according to a Berkeley spokeswoman.

Pleasanton, Livermore, Valley Community Services District and the Alameda County Fire Departments were held on alert during the night and could have been ordered to assist in Berkeley.

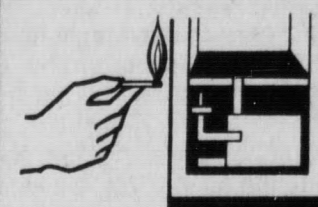

East Bay union officials have said that if any "outside agencies" came to Berkeley's assistance the city would be shut down.

Kennington, Emeryville, Oakland and the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory Fire

Departments helped supervisory personnel in Berkeley. Valley agencies were called upon during the September, 1970, Berkeley hills fire.

Don't bet against Amy

Mike Zampa

Based on past performances, (and that's all any sports forecaster relies on) nine-year old Amy Love of Danville is about to earn a permanent position on her boys' soccer team.

The issue is in court right now. We'll assume that the geographical impact of The Times will allow some pre-trial speculation without influencing a decision in San Francisco federal court.

On that basis, you can just about count Amy in. She is the former Little League baseball player who earned a spot this summer on an Al Caffodio League boys soccer team in Danville. Earned is a key word. The league is an all-star type thing, arranged for the top players from each town. Amy competed with the boys and was selected for the squad on the basis of her performance.

She was denied a spot on the roster July 31, however, by the California Youth Soccer Association. Amy and her parents, David and Jo Ann Love, were informed the CYSA forbids the mingling of girls and boys.

Disheartened, but not defeated, the Loves have taken the whole thing to court. Attorneys Mary Dunlap and Nancy Davis of Equal Rights Advocates have asked that Amy be legally reinstated.

There's plenty to indicate she'll be satisfied. Amy herself is a precedent, having played third base for a boys Little League team last summer. The little leagues were the first to fall in the great women's quest for equality in sports last year.

Since then public schools and universities have also been forced to integrate their athletic teams. Just last Wednesday, the Assembly in Sacramento passed a bill prohibiting use of public funds for high school athletics, unless the money is disbursed equitably between boys and girls.

Rejection of Amy's law suit would be a shocker in the face of these recent developments.

The CYSA realizes the fact. Late Friday it granted Amy a 20-day reprieve to return to her Danville team. The move stalled the threat of a court ordered injunction against the opening of soccer season.

Of course the measure was a stop-gap. Come 20 days from now, the association will still be up against the wall. Amy's parents aren't going to back down.

"Amy is a human being," says her mother Jo Ann, "and she has ability. We have a boy who plays soccer, and he can play without going to court. What we do for one child, we do for the other."

Amy has been told by the CYSA to play for one of its affiliated girls' teams. Jo Ann says, however, that there are none in Danville, and that association rules prohibit Amy from playing in another town.

There are 13 other girls facing the same situation, Jo Ann claims. "We're hoping that by the end of the 20 days the CYSA will come up with something so all those girls can play."

Ron Steele, district commissioner for the association, admitted last week that the simplest solution to Amy's dilemma would be to waive the CYSA sex rule. He doesn't want to, however. The organization is committed to separate programs for boys and girls, Steele said. He claimed that any departure from the bylaws would undermine the system.

The drawback to a "separate but equal" soccer league is in the situation of Amy Love, and girls like her, qualified to play with boys. There are probably but a handful of sufficiently talented young ladies, but right now none have the opportunity to face tougher competition.

The boys on Amy's team apparently feel they should get that opportunity. It was rumored that the entire squad would walkout if their teammate was barred. That too has been rendered unnecessary, at least for 20 days.

Meanwhile, whether or not she eventually plays in the Al Caffodio Soccer League, Amy will be a celebrity. She starred at a San Francisco press conference last Thursday, appearing that night on television news broadcasts, and next day in all the metropolitan papers. Her name clicked across the nation's news wires.

"We worried about all the publicity," Amy's mother says. "That's why we held off so long on this thing."

"I suppose there's a certain amount of pressure, but it really doesn't bother her that much. She just wants to play soccer."

Critics have suggested that the Love's law suit has been one big publicity gambit, engineered by the little girl's father. He is an attorney, they point out, and a crusade for women's rights would be good for business.

David Love is a lawyer, but he can't practice in California, according to his wife, because they haven't lived in the state long enough.

Charges of headline grabbing have been leveled at women's rights champions since the movement began. In fact, most do submit to that tactic. It has proven successful.

Already, the San Ramon Unified School District, which provides fields for youth soccer in Danville, has threatened to take back its playgrounds if Amy is not reinstated.

More evidence that the CYSA will be overcome by a nine-year old girl.

The prospect is not really momentous. Little League baseball underwent very little change last summer, despite the fact its doors were opened to girls. In fact, Amy was just one of four young ladies in all of Danville to play, said her mother.

If the girls can blend in to other sports programs, there's no reason to expect great disruption on the soccer field.

Unless Amy Love should become the league's leading scorer.

Amy plays in MSC opener

Amy Love began her Al Caffodio Soccer League career yesterday amidst little visible turmoil at Diablo's bucolic Athenian School.

While Amy was forced to regain her position on the Mustang Soccer Club's under-10 team through the courts, the Fremont Scirocco's 6-1 win over the Danville side was hardly reminiscent of the more familiar cases of athletic litigation; those involving professional sports.

During the match, the game seemed to be the thing for all involved and afterward, Amy, a nine-year old fourth grader, and her coach, Tom Partlow, talked about soccer rather than the off field battles.

(Amy's parents, David and Jo Ann Love, filed suit against the California Youth Soccer Association Thursday after the organization had forced the removal of Amy's name from the Mustang roster because of her sex.)

Later that afternoon, attorneys for both sides agreed to a 20-day "ironing out" period during which the question of Amy's eligibility will be resolved.)

"She's tremendous," said Partlow of his female fullback. "She lacks a little speed, but has a lot of power."

"She's also the most experienced player we have and can teach a lot to the other players," he added. The Mustang U-10 roster lists just eight players who have ever played before and ten "rookies."

"We're the greenest team on the Caffodio level," Partlow concluded.

Bringing some youthful honesty into the decidedly somber matter, Amy, who displayed a knack for staying with opposing ball handlers, accepted partial blame for one Fremont goal. She also revealed that she'd rather play goalie.

"It's my best position and it's more fun than fullback," she said, adding that she believes she is the best netminder on the team.

Partlow agreed and explained why Amy, originally listed as a goalie was not in the nets Saturday. "Although she's the only one on the team with experience at goalie, not knowing how the court decision would come out, I had to develop another."

He added that she will be played as a utility player, seeing action at goalie, midfielder and forward during her uncertain tenure with the club.

The controversy and exposure surrounding her has not outwardly disturbed Love, who started yesterday.

"Most of the team doesn't mind playing with me," she said, "and I just don't pay any attention to the ones that don't want me."

Amy smiled when asked about the media coverage. "I like being interviewed and it was fun being on TV." Then, kicking shyly at the grass with her almost-new soccer shoes, she concluded with one of the youngest "off-the-record" on record: "Don't tell Mr. Partlow everything I said, I don't want him to get mad at me."

As for Partlow, his goals for the season (which he called a "growth year") still seem within reach despite the outside pressures.

"If I can promote team play and a good feeling among all 18 players, without over-emphasizing winning, I'll be satisfied," the first year coach said.

Among the spectators at yesterday's game were the Love's attorneys, Nancy Davis and Mary Dunlap of Equal Rights Advocates. Davis restated her clients' position and detailed the 20-day agreement.

The 20-day period was agreed upon by the CYSA and the Loves after a conference with U.S. District Court Judge Albert Wollenberg and allows just Amy, not girls in general, to play. It did not come as the result of an official court order.

"We didn't file a class action suit, because her position was different because she'd already made the team," Davis said.

She explained that during the next three weeks the CYSA will talk among themselves and with the Loves. "Hopefully," she said, "it will work out. The law is on our side."

As for the argument that girls playing a contact sport with boys was dangerous, Davis said, "They can get hurt just as easily playing with other girls. This is more a case of different cultural and social milieus of what little girls ought to do."

However, although expressing a reluctance to being quoted on the subject, Mustang Soccer Club Director Al

Brezinsky believes there are inaccuracies in both the Loves' case and recent media coverage.

"A lot of their case is based on the fact that Amy 'made' the team," he said. "In reality not enough people signed up. There was no need for tryouts."

"Maybe if there had been tryouts she would have made it but," he repeated, "there were no tryouts."

Brezinsky, clad in his Air National Guard uniform, also refuted reports that appeared in several Bay Area metropolitan papers which said that no all-female teams existed in the area.

"There are 3800 girls playing in the Livermore-Pleasanton area already and we have sign-ups for our own girls league on Sept. 17," he said. "If the CYSA has to integrate its teams, all the existing programs will go up in smoke."

While Brezinsky agreed that girls are not at a physical disadvantage in the younger age groups (Love was among the tallest players on the field yesterday), he claimed that a wholesale integration would present a problem.

"While it doesn't matter in the under-10's, the under-14 and under-16 girls would obviously be in a different position. Injuries would become a factor."

The director, who assumed the position just two-and-a-half weeks ago following Andy Verdin's resignation which came after the Mustang Club agreed to the CYSA directive barring Amy, was surprisingly stoic about the outcome of the case. "The CYSA will undoubtedly have to abide by Mr. Love's wishes (in view of recent court decisions in similar cases.)"

If it does not, the Mustang Club will have no place to play.

Friday the Athenian School denied further use of its field after the 20-day period unless Amy stays with her team. The San Ramon Unified School District, named as a co-defendant in the Loves' suit, had earlier taken the same action.

Last-second score gives Raiders win

A last-second pass from Mark Sisneroz to Scott Wilson gave the Raiders a thrilling 8-0 victory over the 49ers in a Pleasanton Junior Football League season opening lightweight game yesterday at Amador High School.

Running back Pat Walls added the two-point conversion for the Raiders and the 49ers' fate was sealed.

In other contests the Jets edged the Chargers 12-8 and the Rams took a 6-0 decision over the Dolphins. In a heavyweight contest the Jets throttled the Rams 16-6. David Gottschalk scored on touchdown runs of 22 and 52 yards to pace the lightweight Jets victory. Keith Edney scored the only Charger touchdown on a 40-yard reverse in the fourth quarter.

David Blanchard scored on a 15-yard keeper play for the only touchdown in the lightweight Ram-Dolphin contest. Two plays before his touchdown he had another 15-yard score called back by a penalty.

In the heavyweight game quarterback Scott Henderson was a one-man show for the Jets. He scored on a 60-yard run in the first half and added another touchdown in the third period on a one-yard plunge. Brian Connelly and Keith Didio scored the Jets' conversions on runs. The sole Ram score came on a run by Derek Lumpkin. There will be a full schedule of six lightweight games and four heavyweight tilts Saturday at Amador.

The games will begin at 3 p.m. with one tilt scheduled for 6 p.m. under the lights.

Insurance Notes

Although not a new requirement for employers of agricultural workers—more and more farmers and ranchers are covering their full-time employees and even seasonal or part-time workers with health insurance.

There are many plans on the market today which may be designed to fit the particular need or situation of individual farmers and ranchers. Plans may also be formulated to also include dental and group life insurance.

Most plans also may include members of the worker's family. Because of the fact that there are a variety of health programs available for farm workers, it's wise to make comparisons first and then choose the plan best suited to your operation.

Modern agriculture depends on good, reliable workers—so it's just smart business to make a sound health insurance plan available as an extra benefit.

For thousands of years people have traveled, seeking the healthful benefits and enjoyable feeling from natural hot springs. OPENING OF DOVE season occupied many of the local sportsmen over the weekend. Reports show that some hunters were lucky and some were not, which is not unusual! Skill is an advantage, too; but if the wily birds just aren't there —!

Keith Fraser had the good luck of downing one of the little gray speedsters, then couldn't locate it in the patches of grass and star thistle. It was not until he called on his friend, Tony Oxsen, and Tony's black Lab that the game was found. When Tony said, "Fetch!", man's best friend took over and solved the problem!

PHIL DIAZ says he discovered a strange thing about the color of doves, which are normally a blue-gray on top and light tan underneath. Phil found that if a dove falls in a patch of green tomatoes, it is green; in wheat stubble, it will be tan; in star thistle, a yellow-brown. Has anyone else noticed this phenomenon?

TOUGHY BASSO gives away one of his secrets for finding good dove populations. He says they will be found where there are big patches of mullein weed, especially if there are some roosting trees nearby.

THE FRANK STUARTS report the season proved spotty the first two days in the El Nido and Los Banos areas.

Falcon boss optimistic

For a high school football coach who is leading his team into its first-ever varsity season, Foothill High School mentor John Lupoi is a very optimistic man.

"We expect to go at least 7-2 this season," Lupoi said while his team worked out in the sweltering heat Friday afternoon. "We should have competition against Monta Vista and Franklin of Stockton, but with a little bit of luck we could even do all right against those schools."

The Falcons will play a non-league schedule this year and will not enter the East Bay Athletic League until next season. Monta Vista is the only EBAL squad Foothill will play all season.

Juniors will dominate the Foothill line-up as the school as no seniors. There are only four sophomores on the varsity.

"We plan to carry about 25 players on the varsity and about 23 on the junior varsity," Lupoi said. "While we do not have a great deal of depth we have some quality ball players and they should help us a lot. All you really need in high school ball is 10 quality players and we have them."

Foothill looks particularly strong on defense. The defensive line should average around 200 pounds. Rugged tackle Tony Trujillo is a great pass rusher. The 210-pounder had six quarterback sack sacks in a junior varsity game with Northgate last season.

Other top defensive players are Kevin Coyne and Mike Colvin. Colvin was the leading tackler on the team last season and can run the 40-yard dash in 4.8. He will also be used a lot as a running back, according to Lupoi.

Coyne has been a big surprise in practice. The 190-pound linebacker has made a rapid transition from defensive lineman where he played last season. Defensive coach Jay Craney says Coyne is "super quick and plays like a stud. He has been a super player in practice so far."

The Falcons will use a twin-veer offense, Lupoi says. "It is a rare offense on the high school level," he said. "We have a variety of plays which we can use with it."

The key to the Foothill offense will be quarterback Rick Henderson. Henderson, a 5-foot-11, 170 pound junior, has fair speed and can read defenses well.

"We've been working with Henderson for three years and he has gotten our system down pat," Lupoi says. "He is a good passer and has 5.0 speed for the 40-yard dash."

Other members of the Falcon backfield will include halfback Craig Johnson, a 170-pounder with 4.9 speed; 210-pound halfback Brad Cotton, another 4.9 speedster and flanker Chase Dean. The Foothill offensive line will be led by veteran center David Ledbetter, a 210-pound junior and tackle John Ulrich.

A potential standout for the Falcons could be sophomore Jeff Johnstone. Johnstone will play both ways at flanker and defensive back.

Dons lose all-league back

Mike Goodison is the latest football player to make medical history at Amador Valley High School.

The All-EBAL halfback contracted mononucleosis last week, signaling perhaps the end of the season for him, and another year of boggling infirmity for the Dons.

Goodison, a junior, could be back for part of the league season, coach Fred Wood said optimistically. Perhaps all of it. It isn't a serious case of "mono" according to the coach.

But then in a sense, few of the hurts suffered by his football team are serious. On the contrary, they border on the ludicrous.

Amador nearly won the EBAL championship last fall, though every week somebody was tripping over a sprinkler or falling off a bike.

And it's starting all over again. Already Wood has lost a lineman who attempted to block a dummy, but instead pawed furiously at the ground, dislocating a shoulder. Another player was kicked in the kidney.

The Amador chart after two weeks of practice reads two knee injuries, two ankles, a back, a rib, one case of shin splints, a jammed thumb and that tender kidney.

Most of those injuries should clear up by next Friday when the Dons open their season at Mission San Jose. The only definite no-show will be Goodison.

But he may be the most important.

With the fleet blond in the backfield, Amador's wishbone offense could be murderous. Without him it will be merely good.

Veteran Ken Carney is returning at one running back slot, though Carney sat out the team's Friday scrimmage. He underwent knee surgery last summer after tearing cartilage during spring practice.

Joining him will be Mike Mays, who started occasionally last season at split end, and the backfield. Mays is a hurdler in track, and probably the swiftest of all Amador backs.

Running the wishbone for the Dons will be junior John Sevo, who led the junior varsity in rushing last year from his quarterback spot.

Sevo has never played a down of varsity football, but that doesn't deter Wood.

"He's the kind of competitive kid who shouldn't be affected by that," the coach said. "I don't think it will bother us."

Senior Randy Tallarico, who started a couple of games for Amador last year, will back up Sevo. Tallarico will also be a regular in the defensive secondary.

There is some inexperience in the offensive line, though tackles Bob Koopman and Otto Ribary are veterans, and probable two-way starters.

The defensive line will be solid with Koopman and Larry McInerney at tackles, and Roger Brothers and Don Palmer at the ends.

Ribary and Craig Ramos will be the outside linebackers, with John Mark Clemmens probable in the middle.

Tallarico, Mays, Matt Kendall and John Connolly should all play in the backfield.

"If we were healthy, I'd say we are ahead of last year," Wood offered. Though hovering near .500 all season, Amador held out slight hope for a league title until the final week of the campaign.

Its chances could be better this time around, although there are problems. Inexperience at certain spots is one. Three sophomores could start for the Dons, Ernie Zumbach, Mike Hoff and Glen Hill. That would be an unusual circumstance at Amador.

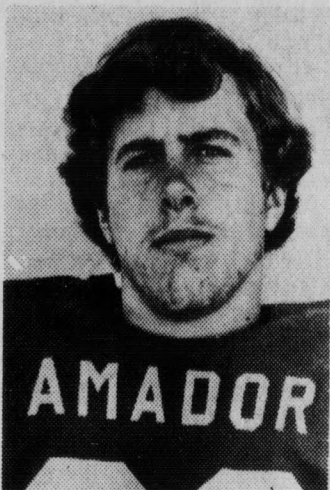

Injuries have been a bother, reducing the roster to 25 for the Friday scrimmage.

"We wanted to spread the players around as much as possible this year," Wood said. "We didn't want to do a lot of doubling up on offense and defense. But it's tough with the dang injuries. I don't want to make a big thing out of it, but if we get Goodison back for the league season, that would help."

United the Valley just might stand

In months past the question was being asked: "What good is a Congress of Valley Agencies?" The agenda for the Sept. 11 scheduled meeting of COVA provides hope that such a gathering of the valley's forces might serve some solid purpose, after all.

The criticism grew out of the propensity by some COVA members for using that forum for campaigns that smacked of personal politics... getting all the valley into Livermore's SAVE standard for one thing; derailing Pleasanton's regional shopping center, for another.

Rather than a forum for sharing new ideas, COVA was settling down to a role as one more platform for the forces of doom, gloom and status quo.

But there are indications that COVA might yet be finding its place in the sun. That Sept. 11 agenda is the harbinger of more solid, valley-wide stuff... "Transportation seminar"... "Position on BART service"... "One City study"

"Gravel pits and El Charro Road access." These are the stated items for that Tuesday evening session.

If the appointed members of COVA — drawn from the valley's four elected governmental panels — can stick to the script, and actually make some solid, united moves on just one or two of those items, then we might all begin to believe that there is leadership in this vale wise enough to understand the larger challenge, and mature enough to look past their own hangups in order to take on the common enemy.

That is what we thought a congress of valley agencies, by whatever name, was really all about.

Now, dare we hope that the valley's other regional aspirant — Zone 7 Water Conservation and Flood Control District — might rise above the ambitions of its separate members, and provide us with the kind of "total water management" that is so desperately needed?

The price of eyeglasses

A few weeks ago this newspaper offered an editorial prod relative to upcoming legislation that would permit the people who sell prescription drugs and eyeglasses to advertise the prices sought for such products and services. We also suggested that those of our readers who might share that opinion contact their legislator — most particularly Assemblyman Floyd Mori of Pleasanton — voicing that sentiment.

This week we can report that AB 1477 cleared the Assembly. Among those 41 assemblymen voting "aye" was Floyd Mori.

There is still a long way to go if we are to achieve "full disclosure" in such hitherto sacrosanct areas as legal and medical services, prescription drugs and the like. (Even AB 1477 has yet to clear the State Senate, or the powerful opposition of the eyeglass industry's lobby.) But one small step has been taken.

Perhaps you helped. Maybe it was your call to Assemblyman Mori that helped win his approval of that bill. Whatever the source, it is good to know that consumer interests can prevail, and that "powerful Sacramento lobbyists" don't win every battle. It is a refreshing report, and one that we are happy to pass along to our readers.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

California High School opened this fall with a fairly firm set of rules and regulations prepared, or at least approved by Ernie Berger, Principal of that institution and one of the area's better educators.

The rules are simple, firm and probably, in the minds of some, fairly severe. They are rules which I think should reassure the parents of any student in attendance there.

They deal with smoking on campus, which is strictly forbidden, unexcused absences, profanity and obscenity, classroom deportment and a variety of other matters.

I cannot help wondering how, if some of the students there procure Boyer August's Handbook on Student Rights, and they surely will, some of those rules are going to be enforced.

August is careful with his presentation. On page 7 of the pamphlet he lists the legal grounds for suspension from school including use of alcohol, drugs, tobacco on school premises, property damage, denying school authority, disobedience, abuse of other school personnel, assault and battery on school personnel, hazing, gambling, membership in a secret club and using or owning dangerous weapons.

But on page 3 he begins to show the students the way out of trouble and how, close as I can tell, to give the teacher a bad time without punishment or reprisal.

He tells the students, "You have a right not to be mistreated. Physically or verbally abused. Students are not to experience mental suffering...." Explaining this he goes on to say that verbal abuse includes comments from any person which humiliate, embarrass, belittle, degrade, insult or dehumanize the student.

Now what does that mean? What is humiliation. I once saw a girl shed a waterfall of tears in outraged anguish because she had been orlith luffification, to go to the principal's office.

Certainly she humiliated and suffering mental anguish, which, by the way, she had justly earned. Should the offending teacher have been hailed into court and ordered to pay a $50 to $500 fine or spend up to six months in jail?

That is what August infers could happen. August is quick to point out obvious infractions by teachers and none of their rights.

Neither does he pay any particular attention to the rights of students who come to school to study rather than to hold a conversation in class, who are offended by profanity and vulgarity and whose classroom time is stolen by disruptions caused by disorderly students.

Yet he is quick to point out that students, even when misbehaving to an extent most of today's adults would find unbelievable, have their rights.

"Teachers can suspend you from class for a maximum of two days. The teacher is required to hold a parent teacher conference as soon as possible. The conference should come before the suspension in most cases."

You get the picture, of course. A couple of young hoodlums are committing mayhem while the teacher, who cannot leave the class, sends a message to the principal asking him to call the kids' parents so they can come down and break up the fight and give her permission to kick them out of class.

An extreme, yes. But what about the kid who walks up to a teacher, and it happens with alarming regularity, and tells her to commit a four letter obscenity requiring a considerable degree of imagination and dexterity?

Let me give you some August gems. (Even if it is September.) "You cannot be thrown out of class without due process which includes an immediate parent conference." "Students who are pregnant have a right to attend school."

Married students and students with children must be allowed to participate in extracurricular activities." (AS if they had not been so doing already?) "Married students, pregnant students and students with children

The week in retrospect

Buses & communicating

Amador and Pleasanton school districts are the only ones in the valley to cutback on transportation of students to and from school.

Livermore and San Ramon are either maintaining the same level of service or increasing it appropriate with growth increases.

All have been faced with greater budget demands...to the point where cuts in certain departments have been necessary.

All this would seem to make Amador-Pleasanton's Director of Transportation Mike Ananos the "heavy" in Ananos' own words.

But that is not really true. Nor is it necessarily like a Vintage Hills, Pleasanton, resident characterized the situation: "It's not Mr. Ananos that's the heavy, it's the (Pleasanton) school board members."

School board members, in league with staff fiscal experts, hold numerous work sessions in the spring of the year to determine where cuts and additions may be necessary. This is not to say that any district waits until then to put together the following year's budget. In fact, district budgeting for 1976-77 is already receiving preliminary attention.

The point is that a school district must make estimates and tentative determinations early-on. We believe that if district finances are going to dictate cutbacks or possibly result in an "austere budget," to quote again Superintendent Bruce Newlin's words, the board must be made aware of this and the public, too.

Now, the news media can try and take care of the latter but we feel the school districts have an obligation to inform as many groups and individuals as humanly possible. The obligation goes far beyond just informing the news media of regular board meetings and executive sessions.

Especially when the subject is in a sensitive area such as transportation of students.

School districts, and I speak now just of those in this valley, must learn how to effectively communicate with parents and taxpayers on ALL matters. Not just the open house nights, the special school programs and the various board meetings.

The people of Silvergate, of Vintage Hills, of Pleasanton Meadows, of Sunset in Livermore or Country Club in San Ramon...wherever there are large groups of parents, the respective school districts must get the message to the individual as well as the group.

I would suggest that, in the future, when a district is even considering a cutback or elimination of school bus stops or curtailing of any other program vital to BOTH parent and child, that all concerned be immediately informed. This would mean sending notice to homeowner groups, posting said notice at schools, in shopping centers and in any area where large numbers of people congregate each day (which includes service club meetings)...as well as informing the news media.

We cannot condemn the decision to cut bus stops in the Amador and Pleasanton districts. Something had to give and staff and trustees, after due deliberation, made a choice.

As trustee Betty Nostrand of the Pleasanton district noted, "Our primary responsibility is providing a quality education." She is correct, but....

The problem is communications and the responsibility for that rests with the district administration.

While on the subject of busing, Livermore Valley Unified reports it transports 900 students each way every day, has 15 routes and 15 drivers.

The district's transportation budget is the same as 1974-75 plus a five per cent increase. One spokesman Friday expressed wariness at how the transportation section could make it through the year without additional funding.

San Ramon carries between 4,700 and 4,800 students to and from school each day, according to Don Capling, director of transportation.

The San Ramon budget reflects the overall growth of the district in the area of transportation. Capling, who is in charge of 35 drivers, said no elimination of bus stops or curtailing of service between home and school could be considered now.

Murray students are all within walking distance of schools so the bus situation is not relevant.

But such is not the case in Pleasanton or Amador districts...as hundreds of students who are now walking to Dublin High, Amador High or Vintage Hills School are finding out.

Thus, the initiation of draft legislation by Silvergate area residents on the subject of walking distance "maximums" for school children. They have succeeded in communicating, not only in their home area, but to parents with the same problems in Vintage Hills and Del Prado as well as the news media.

Round the town

It has been, as they say, a week of heroic proportions. And even though I haven't been feeling all that heroic, makes no never mind. Ours not to reason why, ours but to do, and thereby hope to keep a little peace in the place.

"I've accepted this invitation for you to attend a meeting of the Alameda County Cowbelles," she advises. Being watchdog of both the office and home telephone lines ("I'll get it... you just sit there and rest") gives her first access to all these affairs of state. She also thereby controls the social, business and political calendars. With a pre-emptive right to veto or accept, as the situation presents itself.

"Why in the world would I want to attend a meeting of the Alameda County Cowbelles," I ask, foolishly. "Isn't that an organization for women, and things like that?"

It is only later that I am to be informed that "they want you to talk to them, about press relations, or anything else you feel like talking about."

"How about that thing with the Fashion Show you got me into... isn't that supposed to be this week?" I am also thinking that this is the last of the summer season's shortened work weeks, normally an occasion for a little golf, and other such vacation frivolities.

"The Fashion Show is Saturday, and the Cowbelles meet on Tuesday. So there would be no problem," she concludes. No problem for her, that's for sure, other than deciding "do I wear the cotton print to the Cowbelles and save the green two-piece for the Wednesday luncheon?"

"What Wednesday luncheon," I demand, firmly.

"You promised," she says, and that ends that. A promise made is a promise kept, my dear mother used to tell us. But she never had this woman as a fulltime social secretary.

Turns out the Cowbelles affair is simply delightful. For her. "There are so many old friends here I haven't talked to in years," she declares, promptly leaving me alone in the middle of Hap's large dining room, surrounded by 70 members of the opposite sex. I can recall when Buck Rogers faced a similar trial, some years back. "Buck Rogers Captured by the Amazon Women," was the comic book title, or something like that.

Buck handled himself remarkably well, as I remember. He was also a complete gentleman throughout the entire ordeal. Never even had an unclear thought. Which is why Buck Rogers no longer appeals to today's virile young minds.

Besides which, the Cowbelles are just about the most wholesome assemblage of womanhood I have ever beheld. They talk about beef, husband, child, country with equal parts of fervor. They accept my presence as just one more item in a long and busy program. I am scheduled about two-thirds down the line, between letters from "Project Calf" recipients, and a warm tribute to "our very own Lillian Marciel... the fourth best cook in the State of California!"

The applause for Lillian is warm and genuine. Her description of that prize-winning "pepper steak with garnish" had the place spell-bound. I looked back on my own strident challenge to "Get yourselves involved in the environmental war... NOW!" being about as appropriate as a lecture on sex education before an assembly of the Daughters of the Revolution.

"It was a very delightful evening," she informed me, swinging homeward. "Everyone loved your talk," a comment she felt it necessary to add, like "But we'll keep you on the taxi squad" from the head coach following the big cut.

Back in the safety of our brown shingle, and following a midnight glance at the evening and Tribune and Examiner... ("I see where science says too much showering can spoil your sex life," but that triggered nothing whatsoever) ... I was then able to contemplate the course of my life. The gifted orator, editor, destined to spread the good word to millions. Perhaps it was time I went on the tour, got myself a booking agent. Looked for bigger things.

"If you plan to wear that blue shirt Saturday night, I would suggest you put it out right now for the laundry," the voice says, destroying my globe-trotting reverie.

"What's Saturday night?" I ask, with just the right amount of anguish.

"It's your night to emcee the fashion show, and you know you're going to enjoy it," she says. Her foreknowledge of what I know I am going to enjoy is positively psychic.

"Is there any pay involved in all these command performances?" I ask. "Even something to offset the cost of a laundered shirt and cleaning the potato salad off my suit sleeve would be appreciated."

"Don't be silly," is all I earn for my efforts. "Which jacket did you get the potato salad on? I wish you would be more careful when you dine out. Our cleaning bills are atrocious."

"Maybe I'll just give the fashion group the same dissertation on 'Environment Now!' that kind of got lost in the Cowbelles Social."

"Why don't you just turn out the lights and come to bed," she says. "You can always shower in the morning."

It was one of her most promising speeches.

Letters to the editor

Nixon and Ford

Editor, The Times:

By this time, all the millions of American citizens who never had a chance to vote for him know that Gerald Ford has completed his first year as President. Countless newspapers and magazines have covered the event... But never a discouraging word.

Perhaps the best coverage was that of Time magazine in the July 28 issue: "Ford's First Year — At Ease in the White House," with its cover showing the Holy Family, all seven of them, plus the dog lying at their feet with its tongue out...

I think there are off-cover shots of each member of the President's family, too, engaged in all manner of fun and games, not taken recently enough, of course, to include the First Lady's lapse into reason and good sense over the issues of child-rearing and sexual freedom. (That little incident was for me a totally disarming experience. To think that anyone so close to Gerald Ford could ever speak lines not spelled out by the White House script writers!)

Time magazine, obviously, was also following the script, as were practically all the other news magazines and newspapers. The same thing had happened after the first through the sixth years of another President, Richard M. Nixon... Both were destined to save their nation and maybe the world. In his first six years Nixon had preserved law and order. In his first year Ford had overcome inflation with his WIN buttons and had avenged the seizure of the Mayaguez by arming Goliath (the United States) with the slingshot and soundly thrashing the bully David (Cambodia).

And what can we learn from this immense and approving coverage of Ford's first year in office? What we can learn is the same lesson we had after 75% of the nation's newspapers had devoted their pages to unstinting praise of Nixon for six years, even after Watergate, they and the electronic media were blamed by the Reagans, the Goldwaters, the Loebes, and the Connollys for bringing about their hero's downfall. When President Ford falls down, the same groveling press will again be blamed by the same media haters, joined by millions of voters.

One's darkest thought is that these voters would heartily support a ticket, any party, of Richard Nixon, President, and George Wallace, Vice President, in the 1976 election.

Bicentennial bash

Editor, The Times:

On behalf of the Livermore Bicentennial Organization, I wish to express thanks to your paper, the Livermore Unified School District, LARP, and all those businesses and people who helped to make our recent Bluegrass Concert a success. That success, in a great measure, was due to the wonderful publicity we received from your paper, Station KKKQ, the Dollar Saver and the St. Michael's Bulletin.

Our most sincere thanks and appreciation are extended to the very talented group of young musicians, "The Good Ol' Persons" who came from Marin County to participate in our Bicentennial program: Laurie Lewis, California women's state champion fiddler; Paul Shelasky, mandolinist, California men's state champion fiddler; Barbara Mendelsohn, performer on the dulcimer, banjo, spoons; Kathy Kallick, lead singer; and Dorothy Baxter, lead guitar. We hope to have them back again!

The concern, a benefit for LBO, was arranged by members of the LBO Ways and Means Committee and coordinated by Cecilia Larsen. Jon Pallito acted as M.C., and Jim Burns was in charge of ticket sales. Tickets were received courtesy of the Pizza Arcade. LBO publicity for the concert was handled by Dave Abrahams and Carl Schneider.

Hugh W. Ellsaesser, Chairman
LBO Ways and Means Committee have a right not to attend school." (Some sort of double standard there.) "Never consent to a search. State in a loud, clear voice that you do not want to be searched, but Do Not Resist. (underlined) If you do not consent, the evidence may not be legal and possibly it might not be used against you in court."

"Students can sell underground literature and solicit money on school grounds to support political and social causes."

"Student publications probably cannot be legally censored because of the use of dirty words. The identification of obscenity is extremely difficult."

"No institution may require a student group to hear both sides of any issue for this is a right, not a duty."

"Students can remain quietly seated during the flag salute as a symbolic protest."

"It is clear that if adults come to school for the purpose of handing out leaflets or otherwise engaging students in dialogue concerning political, economic, religious or other questions of public concern, they are exercising their right of free speech and may not (under the present law) be evicted or prosecuted as loiterers. This is so even if they remain after their supply of leaflets is exhausted in order to address the students, even if a large group of students gathers, and even if their presence causes inconvenience, annoyance or unrest. The exercise of free speech is not an unlawful purpose."

There it is, California High School. Quotes from the masterpiece authored by your new English and Journalism teacher.

Honda's CVCC Advanced Stratified Charge engine has three valves per each cylinder. This means it meets the 1975 emission levels without the use of a catalytic converter. It also means you can run it on regular, low-lead or no-lead gas. And naturally it gets great gas mileage.

It has a lot of the economy and handling advantages of the Honda Civic CVCC hatchback and sedan — plus more room. And five doors including a floor-to-ceiling rear door to make loading and carrying bulky things easier. According to EPA lab tests, it got 39 mpg for highway driving. Come in for a test drive and get the full story.

Old Fashioned

PARTY BRISKET of BEEF

Serving Suggestion

This dish, abounding in natural good flavor, is an excellent choice for entertaining when budget is slim and time is important to the hostess. This recipe may be prepared a day before.

6 pounds boneless brisket of beef
Seasoned instant meat tenderizer
1 large garlic clove
Horseradish sauce

2 medium onions, sliced
1/3 cup flour
2 pounds green spinach noodles
(optional)

Tenderize meat with instant tenderizer according to the package. In large heavy kettle or Dutch oven with tight lid, brown beef in its own fat, add sliced onion, cover and bake at 325°F. for 1 hour, cool and refrigerate over night. Return to kettle with stock. Simmer over very low heat, covered about 1-1/4 hours, do not overcook. Remove and keep hot. Make a gravy by blending 1/3 cup flour with juices, remove some of the fat first, add water, stir until thickened. Cook noodles, slice meat on the cross grain. Lay noodles around platter with the meat. Serve green salad, Italian bread & wine of your choice. Serve 6 to 8
